One Day in October:
Forty Heroes, Forty Stories
by Yair Agmon and Oriya Mevorach

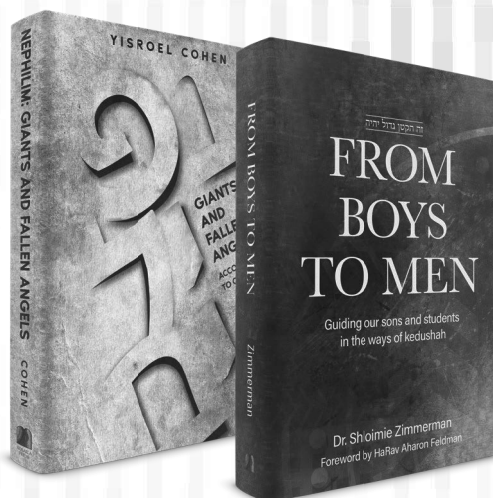

Shaylee placed her little finger in her newborn baby's mouth to keep her quiet. Shlomo sat on the couch and pretended to be asleep. Miki asked the terrorist to keep his promise. Amit comforted the last patient in the clinic. Aner threw seven live grenades out of the public shelter. Emanuel made sure that a fallen soldier's love letter would reach its destination.

And it all happened on a single day. On one day in October. October 7th, 2023, was one of the most tragic days in Jewish history. With Hamas' brutal attack, the State of Israel was ravaged before our very eyes, its land filled with the fallen, with hostages, with refugees. But in that very moment, countless heroes arose.

From the depths of a living hell, through unimaginable sadness and loss, they have risen, giving us hope and inspiration, and the chance to tell a different story. These heroes offer us a ray of light, helping us to see the good as we read of their incredible kindness and bravery.

One Day in October is a unique, ambitious book of monologues that introduces its readers to forty real-life heroes. All forty stories take place within the same twenty-four-hour period, in the same strip of beautiful, broken, blood-soaked land. Amidst all the pain and sorrow, these true and touching stories offer readers a welcome dose of consolation and hope.

Three Classic, Contemporary Titles from Rabbi Moshe Walter

THE Making OF A Halachic Decision

This unique, groundbreaking guide explores the dynamics and intricacies of the halachic process. From Mishna, Gemara, Rishonim, Acharonim, to contemporary halachic works, this indispensable resource illuminates the fascinating progression that culminates in p'sak halacha. Anyone connected to Torah learning – Rabbonim, scholar, student, and layman alike – will come away with a greatly-enhanced understanding of our sacred tradition, and renewed appreciation for the eternal grandeur of Torah.

THE Making OF A Minhag

Jewish life abounds with glorious minhagim, but what exactly is the inside story? This fascinating work reveals the majesty and mystery of this magnificent facet of Jewish law revealing the fundamentals of minhagim: What is considered a minhag; the source, requirement, and halachic status of minhagim. Includes a significant focus on the Minhagim of Pesach and the weeks between Pesach and Shavous.

THE Making OF A Mentsch

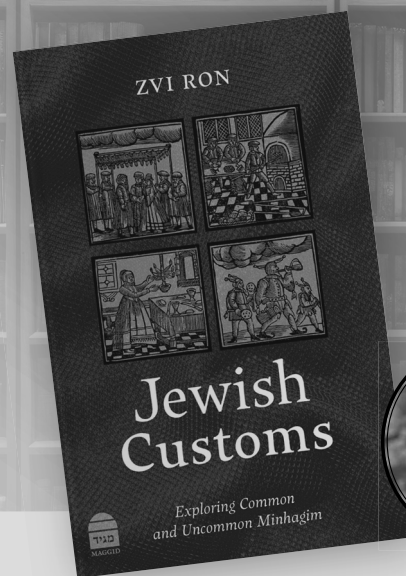

From everyday mitzvos, dealing with friends and family, the world of commerce – even issues relating to the war in Gaza – the halachos of Bein Adam l'Chaveiro apply to all areas of life. Learn how halachic authorities highlight this area of Jewish law, and gain a newfound appreciation for these mitzvos in Torah and Rabbinic literature. This highly-engaging, practical sefer should be everyone's "go-to guide" as we strive "to be a mentsch."

First depiction of Sefirot printed by Jews

The Great Tree of Rabbi Meir Poppers, printed 1862.

The first printed Ilan ha-Gadol to appear since the engravings found in the Kabbala Denudata (Sulzbach, 1677), and the first to be printed by Jews for their own use.

Rabbi Meir ben Judah Loeb ha-Kohen Poppers (1624–1662), was a kabbalist of Ashkenazi descent who was active in Jerusalem after 1640. A pupil of Jacob Zemah, he became the last editor of the Lurianic writings.

The work consists entirely of printed tables which illustrate the Sefirot in their various permutations according to the Lurianic Kabbalah, with textual explanations in Hebrew.

Commissioned by Efraim Fischel Geliebter and Josef Asher Zelig Weinryb with an approbation by R. Isaiah Muskat (1783–1868), a Hasidic rabbi who headed the rabbinic court in the Praga suburb of Warsaw.

A. Bomberg Press, 1864. First edition. Broadside. Paper scroll (8 in. x 132 in.) consisting of 9 sheets of text glued to paper backing. Hebrew/Aramaic.

The Jewish Religious Experience from Halakhah, Aggadah and Kabbalah

With contributions from: Alan Blau, Asher Benzion Buchman, Eliyahu Krakowski, Daniel Rynhold, Jeffrey Saks, Heshey Zelcer, Mark Zelcer, and Shlomo Zuckier

Based on Rabbi Soloveitchik's course taught at the Bernard Revel Graduate School in 1946–1947, these lectures present a sustained argument for the preeminence of Halakhah within Jewish tradition. Nonetheless, Halakhah itself "was re-worked first by Aggadah and then by Kabbalah," and this totality of Halakhah, Aggadah and Kabbalah shapes the Jewish religious experience. Halakhah "atomizes and breaks everything down into simple elements." When it reverses the process and "begins to make a structural whole... it enters into the realm of Aggadah." Kabbalah, too, is integral to the Jewish religious experience. "The kabbalistic perspective rests on Halakhah" and "Halakhah never took exception to Kabbalah." The greatness of the Jewish religious experience is its integration of Halakhah, Aggadah and Kabbalah. "No other religion has such a triad."
