<sup>1</sup> This is in a reference to Dannhauser's 1971 dissertation. Why is it cited in The Halakhic Mind that purports to have been published as written in 1944? And why not cite the 1974 book that was based on the dissertation? Did R. Soloveitchik add it later? If so, what else was added later? It is, best I can tell, the only post-1944 reference. The reference is also only partial. The reference does not appear to add anything significant to the text. Did Dannhauser know R. Soloveitchik?
